Dear colleague,

The Homeland & Border Security Conference, taking place on Thursday 2nd July at the QEII Conference Centre, Westminster, will be looking at how the rules of security are changing. We now face a broad spectrum of evolving and unpredictable threats triggered by massive technological, societal and environmental changes. With the UK seeking to respond to these threats in a more agile and adaptable manner, join us as we bring together those responsible for shaping the security strategy for today and beyond.

Speaking on these issues will be Rt Hon Keith Vaz, Chairman of the Home Affairs Select Committee and William Nye, Director for National Security at the Cabinet Office.

Presentations will include:

- The National Security Strategy and beyond
- Ensuring the success of the e-Borders Programme: Partnering with HM Revenue & Customs, the Police and Travel Industries
- The Role of Police in Securing Communities
- National Risk Register: Increasing awareness of the kinds of risks facing the UK including international terrorism, cyber crime and serious organised crime
- Olympic Security Directorate (OSD): A detailed security strategy for the 2012 Games
- Using Biometric Technology in the Fight against Identity Theft
...and much more

Other confirmed speakers include:

- Lord Carlile of Berriew QC, Government Independent Reviewer of Terrorism Legislation
- Lin Homer, Chief Executive of the UK Border Agency
- James Hall, Chief Executive and Registrar General of the Identity & Passport Service
- Michael Restovich, US Homeland Security Attaché to the United Kingdom
- Sir Norman Bettison, Chief Constable at West Yorkshire Police
- Ben Fletcher, Head of Policy and Communication for the Olympic Safety & Security Directorate at the Office for Security & Counter Terrorism
